LSAT

The Law School Admissions Test (LSAT) is a half-day standardized test required for admission to all ABA-approved law schools, most Canadian law Schools, and many non-ABA-approved law schools. It provides a standard measure of acquired reading and verbal reasoning skills that law schools can use as one of several factors in assessing applicants. The test is administered four times a year. Many law schools require that the LSAT be taken by December for admission the following fall. However, taking the test earlier-in June or October-is often advised.

GRE

The GRE exam measures verbal reasoning, quantitative reasoning, critical thinking and analytical writing skills that have been acquired over a long period of time and that are not related to any specific field of study.

GMAT

The Graduate Management Admission Test (GMAT) is a standardized assessment test, delivered in English, that helps business schools assess the qualifications of applicants for advanced study in business and management. Schools use the test as one predictor of academic performance in an MBA program or in other graduate management programs.

The PRAXIS SERIES

The Praxis Series Assessment provide tests and other services that states use as part of their teaching licensing certification process. The Praxis I tests measure basic academic skills; The Praxis II test measures general and subject specific knowledge and teaching skills; and the Praxis III test measures classroom performance.
